Ft. Branch council Heritage Days request approved

Members of the Fort Branch town council recently approved a request from organizers of the Fort Branch Heritage Days to use shelter house #1 and #3 for the festival this September 12-13. The use of the buildings has been reserved from Sept. 8-14 for the group's use.

A request from Tim Schmitt speaking on behalf of the Fort Branch Community Pride Organization also requested assistance from town employees in setting up for the festival as workers were available, which was approved by council members.

"We appreciate your assistance," Schmitt said.

This year's event will be the seventh annual and will feature such fan favorites as the Little Miss contest, talent show, carnival rides, and musical entertainment.

Owensville to have 'Visioning Workshop' on Thursday

The Owensville Town Council has embarked on a process to develop a Comprehensive Development Plan and is encouraging all residents and interested parties to participate in a Visioning Workshop.

The visioning workshop is an event to gather residents' ideas on what they want their community to be in the future. All areas of community life will be explored and the responses from the participants will be ranked in order of importance.

Owensville's Visioning workshop is scheduled for Thursday,

April 3, from 7-8:30 p.m., at the Owensville Community Center located at 302 East Warrick Street.

The process of developing the Comprehensive Development Plan is being facilitated by Bonar Group, a state-wide firm specializing in planning, engineering and surveying for small town and cities. Comprehensive Plans describe a community and its characteristics, specify goals and policies for the preferred growth pattern, and provide an action plan for communities to follow to reach their preferred future. Woman's identity, cause of death officially released

By John Clise

The mystery into the identity and cause of death of a woman discovered near the Mt. Moriah Cemetery, near Ft. Branch, this past summer, were announced by Gibson County Coroner Rick Hickrod this past week.

The unidentified human female remains were identified through DNA analysis as Catherine E. Walker, 50, Haubstadt, according to Hickrod.

The cause of death has been ruled, multiple drug toxicity, with the manner of death being ruled a suicide.

According to Hickrod, tissue samples were taken and toxicology samples were sent to the state police for analysis.

Because of changes to laws passed in Indiana, in July of 2007, a coroner must have absolute proof of the identity of a person before he can officially declare a person dead.

According to the law, a coroner must meet the burden of proof of one of four criteria to declare a person dead, which are: have visual confirmation by a family member, match dental records, match fingerprints, or match a DNA sample.

According to police reports, the body was found about 2:30 p.m. on Monday, August 27, 2007, near Mt. Moriah Cemetery. The Mt. Moriah Cemetery is located southwest of Gibson Southern High School.

According to reports, the body was located when a caretaker at the cemetery noticed an odor coming from the area and contacted law enforcement. The deceased had been at the cemetery for three to five days, according to reports.
